CLERK AND TREASURER

THE COLORADO RIVER
COMPACT WHICH THE
STATE MAY RATIFY

States of Mexico any right to the use of any waters, such waters shall be supplied, first from the waters which are surplus over and above the aggregate of the quantities specified in paragraphs (a) and (b); and if such plus shall prove insufficient for this purpose, then the burden of such deficiency shall be equally borne by the upper basin and the lower basin and wherever necessary the states of the upper division shall deliver at the Lee Ferry water to supply one-half of the deficiency so recognized in addition to that provided in paragraph (d).

(d) The states of the upper division will not cause the flow of the river at Lee Ferry to be depleted below an aggregate of 75,000,000 acre-feet for any period of ten consecutive years reckoned in continuing progressive series beginning with the first day of October next, succeeding the ratification of this compact.

(e) The states of the upper division shall not withhold water and the states of the lower division shall not require the delivery of water which cannot reasonably be applied to domestic and agricultural uses.

(f) Further equitable apportionment of the beneficial use of the waters of the Colorado River system unapportioned by paragraphs (a), (b), and (c) may be made in the manner provided in paragraph (g) at any time after October 1, 1933, if and when either basin shall have reached its total beneficial consumptive use as set out in paragraphs (a) and (b).

(g) In the event of a desire for further apportionment as provided in paragraph (f), any two signatory states, acting through their governors, may give joint notice of such desire to the governors of the other signatory states and to the president of the United States of America, and it shall be the duty of the governors of the signatory states and the president of the United States of America forthwith to appoint representatives whose duty it shall be to divide and apportion equitably between the upper basin and the lower basin the beneficial use of the unapportioned water of the Colorado River system as mentioned in paragraph (f), subject to the legislative ratification of the signatory states and the congress of the United States of America.

Article 4. (a) Inasmuch as the Colorado River has ceased to be navigable for commerce and the reservation of its waters for navigation seriously limit the development of its basin, the use of its waters for purposes of navigation shall be subservient to the uses of such waters for domestic, agricultural and power purposes. If the congress shall not consent to this paragraph, the other provisions of this compact shall nevertheless remain binding.

(b) Subject to the provisions of this compact, water of the Colorado River system may be impounded and used for the generation of electrical power, but such impounding and use shall be subservient to the use and consumption for such water for agricultural and domestic purposes and shall not interfere with or prevent use for such dominant purposes.

(c) The provisions of this article shall not apply to or interfere with the regulation and control by any state within its boundaries of the appropriation, use and distribution of water.

Article 5. The chief official of each signatory state charged with the administration of water rights, together with the director of the United States reclamation service and the director of the United States geological survey shall co-operate ex-officio:

(a) To promote the systematic determination and co-ordination of the facts as to flow, appropriation, consumption and use of the water in the Colorado River basin and the interchange of available information in such matters.

(b) To secure the ascertainment and publication of the annual flow of the Colorado River at Lee Ferry.

(c) To perform such other duties as may be assigned by mutual consent of the signatories from time to time.

Article 6. Should any claim or controversy arise between any two or more of the signatory states (a), with respect to the waters of the Colorado River system not covered by this compact.

Article 7. Nothing in this compact shall be construed to limit or prevent any state from instituting or maintaining any action or proceeding, legal or equitable for the protection of any rights under this compact or the enforcement of any of its provisions.

Article 8. This compact may be terminated at any time by the unanimous agreement of the signatory states. In the event of such a termination, all rights established under it shall continue unimpaired.

Article 9. Nothing in this compact shall be construed to limit or prevent any state from instituting or maintaining any action or proceeding, legal or equitable for the protection of any rights under this compact or the enforcement of any of its provisions.

Article 10. This compact may be terminated at any time by the unanimous agreement of the signatory states. In the event of such a termination, all rights established under it shall continue unimpaired.

Article 11. This compact shall become binding and obligatory when it shall have been approved by the legislatures of each of the signatory states and by the congress of the United States. Notice of approval by the governor of each signatory state to the governors of the other signatory states and to the president of the United States. And the president of the United States is requested to give notice to the governors of the signatory states of approval by the congress of the United States.

(c) As to the allocation of the burdens incident to the performance of any article of this compact or the delivery of the waters as herein provided.

(d) As to the construction or operation of works within the Colorado River basin, to be situated in two or more states, or to be constructed in one state for the benefit of another state; or (e) as to the diversion of water in one state for the benefit of another state; the governors of the states affected, upon the request of one of them, shall forthwith appoint commissioners with power to consider or adjust such claim or controversy, subject to ratification by the legislatures of the states so affected.

Nothing herein contained shall prevent the adjustment of any such claim or controversy by any present method or by direct future legislative action of the interested states.

Article 7. Nothing in this compact shall be construed as affecting the obligations of the United States of America to Indian tribes.

Article 8. Present perfected rights to the beneficial use of waters of the Colorado River system are unimpaired by the compact whenever storage capacity of 5,000,000 acre-feet shall have been provided in main Colorado River within or for the benefit of the lower basin. GARDEN OF EDEN
WILL FEEL THE SPADE

Marking a step forward in international co-operation of scientific institutions, Oxford University of England and the Field Museum of Natural History of Chicago, have sent a joint expedition to the region where tradition says was situated the Garden of Eden to re-discover the capital of the oldest dynasty in history, it was announced today.

The excavators already are on their way to Mesopotamia bound for the mounds known as Cell El Ohmer, eight miles east of Babylon, beneath which the scientists say lies the ancient royal city of Kish. The party left England under the direction of Prof. S. H. Langdon, head of the Assyrian department of Oxford. He is an American, born in Monroe, Mich., in 1876. The expedition will remain in the East three years.

In excavating the 6500-year-old city the scientists expect to find valuable history of the cultural life of the earliest periods of mankind.

Three hundred thousand worlds the size of the earth could be stored inside the sun.

No use getting excited because somebody tells you to go to hell. You don't have to go unless you want to.

Some people are so disagreeable that we cannot understand how they keep on good terms with themselves.

SECRETARY WALLACE SAYS
FARM PROSPECTS BRIGHT

Twelve months ago most of the six million farmers of the United States were starting on the long hard climb out of the valley of economic depression. They have not yet attained the heights which are bathed in the grateful sunshine of prosperity. Some, indeed, have fallen by the way. Others are still in the valley. Nevertheless, as we stop a bit and look backward we can see that very considerable ground has been gained by the great majority, and we can enter the New Year with renewed hope and with that courage which comes from the realization that we are really making progress.

A year ago, when speaking of the prospects for farming in 1922, I said that while there was no reason to expect boom times for the farmer in the near future, there was promise of better times, both for the farmer and for those whose business is largely dependent upon him. The year has brought fulfillment of that promise. Speaking generally, times are better, much better, than a year ago, both for agriculture and for industry.

Crops have been good, on the whole. Prices of the major crops are mostly considerably higher. While there has been a corresponding advance in the prices of the things the farmer must buy, the total sum which farmers will receive for the crops of this year is greater by a billion and a half dollars or more than that which they received for the crops of last year. This will certainly mean better times on the farm, and farm folks will be able to ease up a little on the grinding economy they were forced to practice the preceding year.

The labor cost of producing the crops of 1922 was still further reduced. There were substantial reductions in freight rates. Much helpful legislation has been enacted and more will be this winter. Interest rates are lower and the credit strain has been eased. This has made it possible for many farmers who were rather heavily involved to refund their obligations and get themselves in condition to win through.

There are still some dark spots. In some sections weather conditions were unfavorable and crops were short, and farmers in these sections are having a very hard time of it. Freight rates are still too high, especially for those who must pay for a long haul to market. Taxes are high, but this is largely due to the increase in local taxes, over which farmers themselves must exercise control.

There has been gratifying growth in farmers' co-operative marketing associations, and more of them are being organized on a sound business basis. Aside from the help which has been given by legislation and by administrative activities, strong economic forces are at work to restore a more normal relation between agriculture and other industries.

The peril in the agricultural depression is more keenly realized by other groups than ever before, and on every hand a sincere desire is being evidenced to do what can be done safely to help the farmer better his condition.

Everything considered, we have good reason to expect still better things for agriculture in the year 1923.

How long will it take you to complete your trousseau, dearest?"

"The rest of my life, I hope, darling."
